

researcher combine those of two theories with theory of gender trouble by Judith Butler to show the main character as part of queer people or the person with sexual attraction with the same sex.

At the end, the researcher strongly agrees that the novel In the dream house by Machado has the case of psychological abuse suffered by the main character inside the novel. Proven by the data findings that have been found from the novel and supported by the theories. Through this research, the researcher hopes that this would be useful for the future researcher who wants to discuss the issue about psychological abuse towards queer people as the knowledge and the researcher hopes that this study make people more realized about the behavior of psychological abuse in society later on.
